Fall Dean's Report

The law school is a curious mixture for all of us. On the one hand, it provides the legal training that has been so important to us individually and, indeed, to the state. It is no overstatement to say that our alumni have made tremendous contributions to the state and the nation over the years. There is also, of course, that intensely personal aspect to the law school. It is old friends and warm remembrances of our days studying law at the University.

All of this came together for me on Friday the 13th of October, 1989. That day, I was able to share in the accomplishments of two of our most distinguished colleagues and participate in the reunion of old friends and classmates.

My day started with the OAK Awards in Louisville. The OAK Awards ("Outstanding Alumnus of Kentucky") are given by the Kentucky Advocates for Higher Education to graduates of Kentucky public and private colleges and universities who have achieved a national stature and reputation in their chosen careers. This year there were five OAK Awards given, and the law school was well represented among the recipients.

Bert Combs ('37) was one of the recipients. Governor (or Judge) Combs is known to everyone. He has had a distinguished career as a lawyer, judge, governor of the state of Kentucky and concerned and active advocate for education. Governor Combs' acceptance statement was simply delightful. He recounted his journey from Clay County, Kentucky in the depths of the depression to Cumberland College wearing a blue serge suit, with $17 in his pocket and an unpaid tuition bill at Cumberland. It was a humorous but heart warming story filled with recollections of personal acts of kindness toward him by teachers and administrators at Cumberland. It also demonstrated the impor-

ance of education to one poor but very bright young man from Eastern Kentucky, and while it may not have been intended, the story certainly demonstrated the importance to the state of providing such young men with access to higher education.

Elvis Stahr, who was the dean of the law school from 1948 to 1956, also received an OAK Award. Dean Stahr came from Hickman, Kentucky to the University as a freshman in 1932. He graduated four years later with a perfect 4.0 average, and while he was at the University also was captain of the debate team and the tennis team. He became a Rhodes Scholar and practiced law with a major Wall Street law firm before the outbreak of World War II. After distinguished military service during the war, he returned to the University of Kentucky to become Dean of the College of Law. Later Dean Stahr also was President of West Virginia University and Indiana University.

That evening was also the start of the Homecoming weekend at the University. We had reunions for the law classes of 1939, 1949, 1959, 1969 and 1979. So, I came straight back from the OAK Awards to the party for the class of 1939 at Paul and Libbet Oberst's home. There were about 10 members of the class in attendance, and, as one would imagine, there were lots of old stories about the good times and the colorful antics of 50 years ago.

I went directly from the 1939 reunion to the 1969 reunion, which is my class. It was a time warp. There were similar stories and old friends, but the ages were somewhat different and the numbers were different. There were probably about 70 members of our 1969 class attending the reunion.

Friday the 13th was a great day. I was able to share in the accomplishments of our alumnus, Bert Combs, and our former dean, Elvis Stahr, and in the reunions of old friends and classmates. It is no wonder that the traditions of the law school are so strong.

The Emeritus Faculty: They're Just As You Remember

It is impossible to overstate the significance and contributions of the emeritus members of our faculty, Burt Ham, Paul Oberst and Fred Whiteside. All of us, especially those of us over the age of 35, have great memories of these guys. They were major forces in our legal education.

Burt, Paul and Fred all have offices at the law school. They continue to participate in faculty matters, and we depend on them a great deal for their wisdom and their perspective. Plus, as each of you knows, they simply are good guys. It's just nice to see them everyday.

Burt Ham, who retired in 1985, has visited at Southern Methodist University, where he taught contracts. They tried to get him to come back to do it again, but Burt was unable to work it out. Last year he taught Business Associations here at the law school. This semester he is visiting at the University of Louisville for a second time to teach their course in Business Associations. It is a fitting tribute that we are having trouble letting Burt, the master teacher, retire from the classroom.

Paul Oberst continues to be active in the Human Rights Commission. He also has just completed a history of the Kentucky Law Journal. Paul also has agreed to write a history of the law school, and he hopes to have that done in a year. As you may know, Paul entered the law school in 1936 as a freshman. Except for World War II, a period in practice and visits to other schools over the years, Paul has been at the law school since 1936. He even remembers when the President's wife had tea on Friday afternoons and invited the entire student body of the University to attend. I think we would all agree that such a perspective will make the law school history fascinating reading.

Fred Whiteside, who retired in 1978, continues to be active on a number of fronts. He does some legal work for people, principally in the area of estate planning. In addition, he recently completed the 1989 edition of Laws and Programs For Older Kentuckians, which was published by the Kentucky Bar Association. Fred is at the law school every day, and one of the big reasons I miss being on the faculty is the fact I had to give up my office right next to Fred's. We still see each other, of course, but I do miss those daily conversations and visits.

These three men have given a total of over 100 years of service to the law school. Stop by and see them sometime, or write them a note and tell them how much you appreciate what they have done for us. They deserve our admiration and respect for their tremendous contributions to the law school, to UK and to us.

A New Name And A Changing Format!

As the law changes, so the law school changes. Now another change... our name from The Review to Kentucky Lawyer. After a long and successful publishing history as The Review we felt that the name Kentucky Lawyer might identify the source and the focus of the College of Law's newsletter more accurately. We are also proceeding with a shift to more of a "magazine" format while retaining the newsletter features traditionally found in The Review. We hope you like our new name, nameplate, contents and formats, and we welcome your suggestions. Our plan is to phase in changes and new features in upcoming issues, so if you have criticisms, compliments, or suggestions, please let us know.

Reflections

Kentucky Lawyer Volume One, Number One

This issue of Kentucky Lawyer being our first under that title, we thought it might be interesting to look back to another "Volume One, Number One." The following paragraphs are taken from the January 1913 Kentucky Law Journal, Volume One, Number One:

The Legislature of the State of Kentucky in 1908, by special enactment, converted Kentucky State College into a University, which now assumes its place at the head of the education system of the State, as State University of Kentucky. It was the design of the Legislature to make a strong state educational institution, and additional appropriations were made for that purpose. Additional courses of instruction were provided for in 1908, one of which was a course in law. Accordingly the Board of Trustees directed that the College of Law be established as one of the integral parts of the University, and that it be opened September, 1908, for the admission of students. A course of study covering a period of two years was prescribed, but the experience of one year proved that a longer period is required for a student to acquire a knowledge of the various elements of the law which will enable him to meet the needs of the profession. Commencing with September, 1909, the course was extended to three years, and embraces work of a collateral nature, which experience has proven to be of practical value in connection with technical instruction.

Formerly it was possible for the law student to begin and complete his professional studies in the office of a practicing lawyer. The demands upon the beginner were not so great; the authorities were few; the leading principles were settled and their application was comparatively simple. Now greater and better things are required. Our country is experiencing remarkable growth and development. The requirements for a successful career in all lines of business and in all professions necessitate the laying of a broader foundation before encountering these greatly changed conditions. The design of this College is to teach the student the fundamental principles of English and American law, and to so extend the course of study as to fit him for the bar in any state. The course offered is thorough and comprehensive, giving such training as will prepare him for usefulness as a citizen, and success as a practitioner. The instruction will not be limited to persons who may choose the law as a profession, but will be given also to special students who may elect to take a limited course on such subjects as will be found useful in the pursuit of some other business or occupation. A good knowledge of the law is now being generally recognized as necessary and fundamental in making up a well-rounded preparation for a business life. Besides this, the study of law, as now taught, with its collateral work, is an important part of a liberal education.

The College of Law is now located in spacious quarters in the Science Building. There are large lecture rooms, reading rooms, offices, a court room and a large and well equipped law library, containing all the National Reporter System, the Kentucky Reports, the Federal Court Reports, including those of the Supreme Court, the Lawyers' Reports Annotated, Encyclopedias of Pleading and Practice and a great number of standard reference works and law books. It is planned to add several thousand volumes to the library in the next year.

Another important feature of the school is the success with which pleading and practice is taught in the moot or practice court conducted by Judge W.T. Lafferty, who, after having practiced for thirty years, is deemed by all to be without a peer in this line of work. Under his direction the students prepare and file in court pleadings in both law and equity. A regular court docket is kept and the students carry through the various steps in every case from its inception to the final order.

The following is a list of the faculty and lecturers: Judge Henry S. Barker, President, Judge W.T. Lafferty, Dean and Professor of Law; Judge Lyman Chalkley, Judge Charles Kerr, Mr. James R. Bush, Mr. J. Embry Allen, Mr. George W. Vaughn and Mr. E.R. Sweetland. Dr. Tuthill and Professors Tigert and Farquhar from the faculty of the College of Arts and Sciences have charge of the work in Political Economy and Sociology, Roman Civil Law, and Forensics respectively.

Judge Henry S. Barker, Col. John R. Allen, Judge Samuel M. Wilson and Messrs. Richard C. Stoll and George R. Hunt make up the list of resident lecturers. The non-resident lecturers are Judge E.C. O'Rear, Judge John M. Lassing, Commissioner William Rogers Clay, Senator J.C.S. Blackburn, Hon. T.L. Edelen, Hon. Byrd Winchester and Hon. R.A. Daly.

The last issue of the American Law School Review contains the following:

"The College of Law of the State University of Kentucky, Lexington, KY., has opened the present session with an increase of forty per cent in student attendance over that of the past year. The faculty now consists of seven members, and each is admirably fitted for his work. One thousand volumes of standard law books have been added to the library during the past year, and arrangements are now being made to add two thousand more volumes during the present year, so that the library equipment will consist of more than five thousand volumes. At the meeting of the Association of American Law Schools, held in Milwaukee in August last, this Law College was admitted to membership in that Association."

College of Law Placement News

This fall the College of Law Career Planning and Placement Center, under the direction of Associate Dean Drusilla Bakert, has initiated a new program to help match interested UK law students with employers across Kentucky and elsewhere in the U.S.

Second and third year students who use the College's placement services now fill out a Preference Card to indicate the locations and types of employers in which they are interested. If you would like to receive the resumes of UK law students who are interested in your practice area(s) and/or location, please write or call Dean Bakert at 261 College of Law Building, University of Kentucky, Lexington, KY 40506-0048 (Phone 606-247-8320).

This year is the second year that the Career Planning and Placement Center has published the Law Students' Guide to Kentucky Law Firms, based on information from surveys sent over the summer to firms of all sizes across the Commonwealth. If you did not receive a survey and would like your law firm added to the 1989-90 Guide, contact Associate Dean Bakert.

The Placement Bulletin for the graduating class of 1990 is available from the Career Planning and Placement Office. The Bulletin includes photographs, background information and career goals for most members of the 1990 graduating class, as well as some information about this year's second year class. Call or write Associate Dean Bakert for a copy.

The Salary Survey for the Class of 1989 will be available in February of 1990 and is based on a survey distributed to new graduates after bar results are published in October. The Survey includes median salary figures for law firms of various sizes and other employer groups, and well as median figures for starting salaries in different areas of Kentucky.

1988-89 Moot Court Team Finishes Second In Nation '89-'90 Team Again Off to Nationals

The 1988-1989 Moot Court Team from the UK College of Law placed second in the nation in the January 1989 championship competition in New York City.

Although a team from the College of William and Mary finished first in the competition, UK's two member team of Margaret Alfred and Kerry Smith defeated teams from Montana, Denver, New York University, Vanderbilt and Chase Law School.

The moot court competition began with some 300 teams from 14 different regions across the nation. The teams were narrowed to 28, two from each region. The two teams that won first and second to represent our region were the College of William and Mary and UK, respectively. Twenty-eight teams went to New York to compete for the national championship.

Smith is a 1986 graduate of Western Kentucky University. Alfred is a 1980 graduate of Vanderbilt University. Alfred also placed second in individual competition for best oral advocate.

In addition to Alfred and Smith, two other third-year students from UK also participated in the national competition. They were Elaine Roberts from Mt. Sterling, a 1986 Graduate of Centre College, and Jane Grigsby from Neenah, Wisc., a 1986 graduate of the University of Wisconsin.

The 1989-90 Team has again advanced to the national finals to be held in New York City in January of 1990. The team of Julie Butcher and Gene Vance defeated teams from Campbell, Duke, George Mason and William and Mary in the regional round. This is the fourth year in a row that the UK Moot Court Team has progressed to the national finals in New York City.

Brown, Todd & Heyburn Endows Professorship

The law firm of Brown, Todd & Heyburn has given the College of Law a $75,000 gift to endow a professorship in the firm's name. The endowment will fund the eighth such professorship in the College of Law.

George E. Dudley, chairman of the firm's management committee, cited the College of Law's "immeasurable contributions to the legal profession and the public" in presenting the gift. "Our firm wanted to show its appreciation and, more importantly, we wanted to help ensure the continued excellence of the law school."

The gift was accepted on behalf of the College by Dean Ruthford B Campbell, Jr., who said, "The core of any law school is its faculty, and the excellence of this law school is truly found in the excellence of its faculty. Such a generous gift from members of this fine law firm demonstrates their understanding of the importance of attracting and retaining a first-rate faculty."

The firm is based in Louisville and has additional offices in Lexington and New Albany, Indiana.

IS YOUR FIRM REGISTERED FOR THE MID-SOUTH RECRUITMENT CONFERENCE?

On Saturday, March 3, 1990, law students from UK, the University of Louisville, the University of Tennessee and five other southeastern law schools will be interviewing with legal employers from Kentucky, Tennessee and other states at the Mid-South Recruitment Conference in Nashville. If your firm is looking for summer clerks or new associates, you should make plans to attend.

The Mid-South conference is designed for legal employers that have not made hiring decisions earlier in the academic year. The interviews all take place on Saturday, allowing employers to avoid taking time from work schedules to interview. Employers will have the opportunity to see students from eight schools in one location, and select candidates for interview prior to the conference by reviewing their resumes.

The Mid-South conference will be held at the Park Suite Hotel, located a few minutes from the Nashville airport. The registration fee is modest—$75.00 for one interviewer for firms, $50.00 for government agencies, $25.00 for public interest and legal services groups. All employers pay $20.00 for each additional interviewing schedule. Hotel reservations are to be made separately at a special conference rate.

The Mid-South brochure and registration form will be in the mail to most Kentucky legal employers by early January, 1990. If you did not receive one, please call Associate Dean Drusilla Bakert at 606-257-8959.

KLJ Often Cited By Courts, Other Law Reviews

The College of Law's Kentucky Law Journal was cited more often by courts and other law journals than many publications from larger schools, according to a study in the Jurimetrics Journal. The study, in 26 Jurimetrics Journal 400, ranked law reviews by comparing how often each was cited by law journals and by courts. Rankings for courts and journals were then combined for an overall ranking.

KLJ was ranked 39th overall, just after Northwestern University Law Review and Notre Dame Lawyer and ahead of such publications as the Boston College Law Review, Cornell Law Review, and the North Carolina Law Review. The Journal was ranked 42nd in citations by other reviews and 48th in citations by courts.

The technical study published in the Jurimetrics Journal was part of a larger research effort, including an investigation of whether journals tend to serve local or national readerships.

Associate Dean Paul C. Van Booven Departs For UK Office of Legal Counsel

After more than 13 years of dedicated service to the College of Law, Associate Dean Paul C. Van Booven has joined the Office of Legal Counsel for the University of Kentucky. Paul played a key role in the organization, operation, policy formation and leadership activities of the law school over the past decade. He began working for the College during the administration of Dean George Hardy and served under subsequent Deans Thomas Lewis, Robert Lawson, and Rutheford Campbell. A 1976 graduate of the law school, Paul served as Managing Editor of the Kentucky Law Journal during his student years. As Associate Dean he worked in many administrative areas while concentrating his efforts in admissions, academic scheduling, and student advising. He assumed the major task of computerizing the College's records and operations and brought the law school into the computer era. As Associate General Counsel for the University of Kentucky we are glad that Paul's talents have not been lost to Kentucky or to the University, but we will miss him greatly and remember him fondly at the law school.

Fortune Accepts Appointment As Associate Dean For Academic Affairs

Associate Dean for Academic Affairs William H. Fortune

William H. Fortune, member of the College of Law Faculty since 1969 and most recently Dorothy Salmon professor of law, has been appointed Associate Dean for Academic Affairs for the 1989-90 academic year. He is responsible for academic scheduling and counseling and serves as Chair of three law school Committees: Admissions, Faculty Support, and Academic Status and Regulations. Bill's appointment will allow him to focus attention on the academic aspects of law school administration as it relates to both student and faculty concerns. He brings a wealth of knowledge and experience to a critical job.

Lyn Kennedy Appointed As Director Of Admissions And Student Affairs

Carolyn Martin Kennedy, a 1983 honors graduate of the College of Law has been named Director of Admissions and Student Affairs as well as being specifically designated by Dean Campbell to serve as the College's first Director of Minority Affairs. A native of Louisville, Lyn received her B.A. in 1966 and her M.Ed. in 1977 from the University of Kentucky. After teaching in secondary schools for a number of years she entered law school. Lyn has engaged in private practice in Lexington since her graduation. As Director of Admissions and Student Affairs, Lyn will be directly involved in the school's admissions process as well as in student advising and counseling. As the College's first Director of Minority Affairs, she is already working on a February 3, 1990 Minority Law School Visitation Conference to be held at the law school. Alumni and others knowing of minority college students with an interest in law study are asked to encourage their attendance at the conference. Kennedy has recently completed a most successful effort involving a program entitled "Project RAP" (Realizing Academic Potential). This project brings together law school administrators, local minority attorneys, and the UK Office of Minority Affairs in a combined effort to encourage and counsel minority students at the junior high level to prepare early for setting the appropriate goals to attend law school. Kennedy brings an enthusiasm to her work that has given her excellent rapport with the students and made her an excellent addition to the law school administrative staff. A more detailed article on Lyn will appear in the next issue of Kentucky Lawyer.

Garvey Named University Research Professor

College of Law Professor John Garvey was named one of four University Research Professors for 1989-90. The research professorships were established in 1977 to encourage scholarly research and to recognize outstanding research achievement. The recipients are relieved of their teaching duties for one year, allowing them to concentrate on their research.

Garvey is a graduate of Harvard Law School and has served on the College of Law faculty since 1976. He was appointed Wendell Cherry Professor of Law in 1986.

He has written extensively on constitutional law and is particularly interested in what he calls "the hard cases," including religious freedom and the right to die. In addition to co-authoring a recent collection of essays entitled "Readings on Modern Constitutional Theory" he is working on a publication for the American Academy of Arts and Sciences on religious fundamentalism and politics.

Graham Named Great Teacher

The UK National Alumni Association has recognized College of Law Professor Louise Graham as one of its Great Teachers for 1989. Graham, a member of the College of Law faculty for 11 years, teaches primarily in the domestic relations and commercial law areas.

The Association each year recognizes several UK professors for their outstanding service to education. This year five people received the award, which carries a cash prize of $750. The awards were made at UK's annual Honors Day program on April 28.

To be eligible for the award, teachers must have been a member of the UK faculty for three years and hold the rank of Assistant Professor or above. Awards are made on the basis of the teacher's knowledge of subject matter and acquaintance with current issues; effectiveness in presenting the material; originality and innovation in teaching; interest in and involvement with students; and overall contribution to the university.

FBI Director William Sessions Delivers 6th Roy Ray Lecture

The Honorable William S. Sessions, Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation delivered the Biennial Roy and Virginia Ray Lecture on the evening of October 17, 1989 in Lexington.

Sessions spoke on the timely and often controversial topic of "Constitutional Protections In FBI Investigations" to over 450 persons at Memorial Hall on the University of Kentucky campus. In examining three commonly utilized techniques of criminal investigation: electronic surveillance devices, informants, and undercover agents, Sessions focused on the difficulties of maintaining a balance between individual liberties and social order. The most valuable aid to the discovery of corruption, he maintained was the use of undercover agents, who too often are glamorized or criticized unfairly, but who he feels should be viewed as major instruments of justice to be trusted implicitly.

William S. Sessions received his B.A. degree from Baylor University and his L.L.B. degree from Baylor University School of Law. After working as a private practitioner in Waco, Texas, Sessions served as Chief of the Government Operations Section, Criminal Division, for the Department of Justice; U.S. Attorney for the Western District of Texas; and U.S. District Judge for the Western District of Texas. Sessions resigned his position as U.S. District Judge

"The FBI's lawful, intrusive techniques can with proper management and oversight, maintain the social order we must preserve without jeopardizing the individual freedoms of our citizens."

to become Director of the FBI and was sworn in on November 2, 1987.

The Roy and Virginia Ray Lectureships in Law were established in December of 1977 with the endowment of the Roy R. and Virginia F. Ray Lecture Fund. A lecture has been presented biennially since 1979.

A native of West Virginia, Mr. Ray received an A.B. from Centre College in Danville, Kentucky, and an L.L.B. from the University of Kentucky College of Law in 1928. He later received an S.J.D. from the University of Michigan Law School and is currently Professor Emeritus at Southern Methodist University School of Law. Professor Ray's spouse, Virginia Featherston Ray, is a native of Midway, Kentucky and a 1929 graduate of the University of Kentucky with a B.S. in Home Economics.

The five previous Roy and Virginia Ray lectures were delivered by Roger C. Cramton (1979), then Dean, now Professor, Cornell Law School; Jesse H. Choper (1981), then Professor, now Dean, University of California School of Law; The Honorable David L. Bazelon (1983), Judge of the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit; The Honorable Prentice H. Marshall (1985), Judge of the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois; and The Honorable Abner J. Mikva, Judge of the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit.

UK Law Graduates Dominate Leadership Awards For Kentucky Bar

Each year the Kentucky Bar Association presents three major awards to members of the legal profession. The Outstanding Judge and Outstanding Lawyer Awards are presented to a judge and lawyer who have distinguished themselves through a contribution of outstanding service to the legal profession. The Kentucky Bar Center Award recognizes outstanding service to the Kentucky Bar Association by a member of the bar who has made a special contribution to the association. All three of the 1989 awards were given to UK College of Law graduates. The law school takes pride in all of our graduates, and this year we take particular pride in the 1989 Outstanding Judge's Award going to Honorable Edward H. Johnstone, '49, Chief Judge of the U.S. District Court for the Western District of Kentucky; the 1989 Outstanding Lawyer Award going to William T. Robinson III, '71, a partner in the Covington law firm of Robinson, Arnzen, Parry & Wentz; and the Kentucky Bar Center Award going to the Honorable Rebecca J. Westerfield, '72, Judge of the 10th Division of the Jefferson Circuit Court.

Students

1989 Graduation

One-hundred and forty-six UK law students became UK law graduates while attending Commencement Exercises on May 6, 1989 at the Singletary Center For The Arts on the UK campus. Dean Rutheford Campbell presided over the procession of legal academics lead by Susan Jayne Mohler of Lexington. Greetings were offered by former Governor and Judge Bert T. Combs on behalf of the Bar, Associate Professor Thomas J. Stipanowich on behalf of the faculty, and Susan Jayne Mohler on behalf of the students. In addition to the conferring Juris Doctor degrees, two students were selected by the law faculty to receive the 1989 Faculty Cup Award: Gene L. Humphreys of Lexington and Margaret Hornberger Alfred of Atlanta, Georgia.

Profile Offered For Fall 1989 Entering Class

The Fall 1989 entering class of 146 students will soon become the UK law graduation class of 1992. They will look, feel and sound a bit different when they leave, but for the record here is the way they look coming in. They had a median LSAT score of 36 and a median grade point average of 3.34. Their composition is 83 males and 63 females (57% male and 43% female); 140 Whites and 6 Blacks; the oldest student 52 and the youngest 20. As to residency, the breakdown is 133 Kentucky residents and 13 non-residents, representing CA, LA, MI, NC, NY, OH, PA, RI, IN, VA, WV, and Australia. There is a range of representation from the congressional districts of the Commonwealth: 5 from the 1st (far west), 12 from the 2nd (not so far west), 24 from the 3rd (Louisville), 8 from the 4th (northern KY), 12 from the 5th (southeastern), 53 from the 6th (includes Fayette County), and 16 from the 7th (mountain counties). Of the 146 students, 50 schools are represented with 52 students having taken their undergraduate studies at the University of Kentucky.

Handbooks and Monographs Fill Lawyers' Needs

The Office of Continuing Legal Education at the College of Law (UK/CLE) has recently celebrated its 16th anniversary and has now presented over 250 seminars. In addition to our statewide commitment to offering high quality continuing legal education across the Commonwealth of Kentucky we are building a strong regional reputation in the bankruptcy, securities law, construction law and federal practice areas, as well as a strong national reputation in the equine law area.

The UK/CLE practice handbook library continues to grow in size and popularity. At the end of 1988 we had six titles published and several new titles in process. Currently available titles are Federal Criminal Practice (1987 with 1989 supplement), Basic Personal Injury Anatomy (1987), Drafting Wills and Trusts (1988), Kentucky Business Organizations (1989), Kentucky Time Limitations (1989) and Kentucky Civil Practice Before Trial (1989). Handbooks in progress are "Kentucky Civil Practice At Trial," a two volume set on "Kentucky Real Estate Practice" and a one volume guide to "Kentucky Estate Administration."

Nineteen Eighty Eight saw the publication of our first three monographs. Monographs are concisely written, well researched practice guides covering selected topics of narrower scope than our more comprehensive Practice Handbooks. The current titles are Non Profit Corporations In Kentucky, Private Adoption In Kentucky, and Kentucky Land Use and Zoning Law. Most have detailed Tables of Contents, Indexes, and Tables of Cases. New titles are planned for 1990.

Our budgets, revenues, publication sales and seminar presentations have continued to expand, and the program continues to operate as a self-supporting office of the College of Law. It is hoped that the successes of the past year can again be used to provide an increasing amount and variety of services to the bar. The 1988 Workers' Compensation seminar in Lexington experienced the largest attendance (419) in UK/CLE history, except for our $10-$20 regional programs conducted in Louisville. In summary, for the fiscal year 1988-89 we offered 20 seminar presentations, and sold over 1,200 publications.

This past year saw the departure of UK/CLE's Assistant Director, Jean Moisan to matrimony in upstate New York. We are proud to report that she has now taken a position as Assistant Director of Continuing Legal Education with the New York State Bar Association. David T. Miller, formerly with the law firm of Wyatt, Tarrant & Combs was employed as Assistant Director in February 1989 and in nine months has brought two handbooks and two monographs to publication while projecting two additional handbook titles and several additional monographs for publication before the end of the 89-90 fiscal year. He has also assisted with work on an expanded list of course offerings including several of the fall 1989 football weekend workshops. Those workshops continue to be enthusiastically received by the registrants. Their three hour, Saturday morning format has allowed us to focus seminar offerings on coverage of more defined topics in a small group "workshop" setting. Attendance for the 1989 series again exceeded that of the 1988 series and we are building a loyal following. The Saturday format also allowed us to co-sponsor a recent program on ethics and professional responsibility with the Ohio CLE Institute of Columbus, Ohio.

With the expansion of mandatory continuing legal education to over 30 states, the Office of Continuing Legal Education has made a concerted effort to acquire "accredited sponsor status" with other mandatory CLE jurisdictions. To date UK/CLE has been approved as an accredited sponsor for mandatory continuing legal education in 21 states including Alabama, Connecticut, Delaware, Georgia, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Carolina, Tennessee, Vermont, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin, and Wyoming.

David Miller Joins CLE Staff

David T. Miller joined the College of Law's Office of Continuing Legal Education staff in February of 1989. Formerly with the Lexington Office of Wyatt, Tarrant & Combs, he was graduated with honors from Stetson University College of Law, St. Petersburg, Florida in 1986. Miller is a native of West Virginia and received his undergraduate degree in language arts from West Virginia University and has taught in West Virginia public schools. His primary responsibility will be in the planning and supervision of practice handbook and monograph publications. In reference to Miller's joining the office, CLE Director Todd Eberle said "David brings a creative intellect and a genuine desire for excellence to his efforts on behalf of CLE. We are extremely pleased to welcome him to our staff."

Other good news in the staffing area was the transfer of an experienced "temporary employee" to permanent status. Charlene Montgomery began her work with the CLE office in 1986 while working on her doctorate in music theory. Now as a permanent employee, she is applying specialized knowledge from her minor in computer science. Thus, in addition to her supervision of seminar and publication marketing, she is in charge of typesetting and composing the text of all UK/CLE Practice Handbooks via computerized desktop publishing equipment.

Alumni

Chaz Lavelle '75 Leads Law Alumni Group

Newly elected President of the UK College of Law Alumni Association, Charles J. "Chaz" Lavelle of Louisville offers an open letter to all law graduates on that group's increasingly successful activities in support of the College of Law:

Dear Alum:

As the new President of the Law Alumni Association, I'd like to tell you what the Association is doing for you and the College of Law, encourage your membership and ask how you think we could best serve you and the law school.

The goals of the Law Alumni Association are to support the law school and to better relationships among the alumni and the following groups: other alumni, students, faculty, staff, administration and law school donors. In doing so we have engaged in many diverse activities, some on a regular basis and some as special projects; some with outside funding and some without; some sponsored and some coordinated; but always with a view towards fulfilling our goals.

Some of the activities in recent years include holding the annual alumni banquet or reception at the KBA meeting; supporting the Lafferty Society by having an annual breakfast at the KBA meeting, an annual cocktail party before the Fellows Dinner and maintaining the plaques listing each member at the Law School; publishing an Alumni Directory (available free to all members); holding a winter Faculty Appreciation Dinner (the first was this year and was a tremendous success); holding an annual Homecoming Reception; annually bestowing monetary Lewis Awards on deserving staff; sponsoring and coordinating regional Alumni meetings (in all sections of the state and outside the state, such as Cincinnati and Washington); refurbishing a VIP/interview room at the law School (so that returning alumni can have a suitable place to work and that interviewing firms can have an accurate impression of our first class Law School); commissioning portraits or photos of former deans and distinguished faculty members; funding a trip to the Finals for the National Moot Court Team; and sponsoring or coordinating decennial class reunion weekends at homecoming. The list of activities, big and small, goes on.

Our alumni are very loyal to the school. Last year we had 550 active, dues-paying members in the Alumni Association. However, this represents only 13% of the living alumni. We'd like to have you and each of your fellow alumni as active members. Dues are $25.00 per year. We do not want to detract from the law school's fundraising, which has become one of the school's salvations in an era of dwindling budgets. Each of our activities is coordinated with the administration and, candidly, we often represent the best source of funds for the dean where the school's budget cannot be used. The larger our active, dues-paying membership, the more we can do for the law school.

I'd like to hear from you if you have any thoughts on what the Law Alumni Association should be doing or how it could better serve you and the College of Law.

Thanks.

Development

1988 College of Law Fund

There were 592 givers to the law school in 1988 and we deeply appreciate each contribution our alumni and friends have made. The annual contributions to the College of Law Fund assure continuing advancements for the law school and increase the pride and high regard we all share in its successes. We thank each one of you again.

P.S. Our College of Law Fund records are currently kept in two different computers. As we reconcile our records between those data bases we may have made errors in reporting. If you were a contributor to the College of Law in the 1988 calendar year and find your gift omitted or the amount of the gift listed in error, please let us know.
